Hayden Panettiere considers herself boring compared to her fellow singing actress rivals Lindsay Lohan and Hilary Duff. The 17-year-old actress told Teen People Magazine, "I had paparazzi on my street for a while. I think I bored them to tears. I'm no fun to watch."

Panettiere is the star of NBC's hit show Heroes. Her character, Claire Bennet, is the self-healing cheerleader. Heroes has been credited with putting Hayden Panettiere on the map, despite the fact that the actress has been in numerous television shows and a couple movies.

Since she became the focal point of the show, Panettiere landed a role and started filming the drama Fireflies in the Garden, with Julia Roberts. Hayden is also in the process of recording her debut pop album, which will be released later this year.

The actress has been going strong with Laguna Beach's Stephen Colletti for more than a year. They prefer to keep their relationship low key. She says their nights out usually consist of dinner and a movie.

In a couple months, Panettiere will graduate from high school. "Thank God! School was difficult; when you come and go, you miss out on a lot. Cliques are formed and you're just lingering," she told Teen People Magazine. At the Season one wrap party for Heroes, creator Tim Kring staged an impromptu graduation ceremony for Panettiere. The actress wore a cap and gown and was given a high-school diploma.

Heroes returns Monday night 9:00 PM EST on NBC. The next episode is so chilling it will leave fans wanting to see the next one immediately.

With the return of NBC's hit TV series Heroes fast approaching (April 23rd), I thought you might be interested to know that
