

2008 NFL Rookie of the Year Odds

Contributed by Matt Foust
Tuesday, 19 August 2008
Last Updated Tuesday, 19 August 2008

Online bookmaker BetUS.com has released their odds for the 2008 NFL Rookie of the Year. There are 40 players listed (22 offensive players and 18 defensive players) as well as the Field at +800 odds. The favorite to take the award this year is Oakland running back Darren McFadden at +350 odds.

Every player receiving odds was selected in either the first or second round of this year's draft. Only six players who were selected in the first round did not receive odds (Ryan Clady - OT Denver, Gosder Cherilus - OT Detroit, Joe Flacco - QB Baltimore, Jeff Otah - OT Carolina, Sam Baker - OT Atlanta, and Duane Brown - OT Houston).

Since 1990 the Associated Press has given the Offensive Rookie of the Year award to a running back 13 times, a wide receiver three times, and a quarterback two times. The AP has awarded the Defensive Rookie of the Year to a linebacker nine times, a safety one time, a cornerback two times, a defensive end four times, and a defensive tackle two times since 1990.

There are two quarterbacks, eight running backs, seven wide receivers, and two linebackers being given odds by BetUS.com to win this year's ROY award.

BetUS.com's top 10 favorites to win the 2008 NFL Rookie of the Year:

RB Darren McFadden (OAK) +350

RB Felix Jones (DAL) +450

DT Glenn Dorsey (KC) +500

DE Chris Long (STL) +500

RB Jonathan Stewart (CAR) +550

QB Matt Ryan (ATL) +550

RB Rashard Mendenhall (PIT) +600

DE Vernon Gholston (NYJ) +700

OT Jake Long (MIA) +750

LB Jerrod Mayo (NE) +750

To see the complete odds for the 2008 NFL Rookie of the Year visit BetUS.com.