Andy Murray has already been tested in two of his last three matches. His third round match against Aussie Jurgen Melzer was forced into a fifth set by Murray he dropped the first two sets. After that it was all Murray as he won the final three sets 6-7, 4-6, 7-6, 6-1, 6-3 in a grueling 3 hour 53 minute match. Murray has squared off against Stanislas Wawrinka six times; Murray is 3-3 against him and 3-1 on hard court. This year on hard court Murray is 14-5. Murray is 35-13 this year with three titles. He defeated top seed and world No.4 Nikolay Davydenko at the 2008 Qatar ExxonMobil Open to get the title, he won in France and in Cincinnati after beating Novak Djokovic. At last year's US Open Andy lost in the third round, his best ever appearance was in 2006 when he made the fourth round.

Switzerland's Stanislas Wawrinka is fresh off a gold medal win in men's doubles action where his partner was none other than Roger Federer. He's made two finals this year, one in Qatar and in Rome. At the 2007 US Open Wawrinka reached the fourth round, a stage he had never reached previously in a Grand Slam event, notably defeating 25th seed Marat Safin 6–3, 6–3, 6–3 in an amazing show of talent in the second round.
