The Buffalo Bulls and the Connecticut Huskies will square off against each other tomorrow at the third annual International Bowl. The contest is set to kick off at 12:00pm ET at the Rogers Centre in Toronto and will be broadcast on ESPN2. College bowl picks at BetUS.com have the Huskies listed as a -6.5 favorite.

Connecticut stormed out of the blocks this season by winning their first five games, but they were unable to sustain that momentum in the second half of their schedule. The Huskies managed just two victories in their final eight games to conclude the regular season at 7-5. Randy Edsall's troops went 3-4 in Big East play and finished in fifth place in the eight team conference.

Buffalo continued their turnaround this season under the guidance of third year Head Coach Turner Gill. They returned 18 starters from last year's 5-7 team and used their experience to amass a 8-5 mark this year.

The Bulls concluded conference play at 5-3 and won the MAC's East division, earning a showdown with undefeated Ball State for the MAC Championship. Buffalo stunned the Cardinals 42-24 to win the conference title, the first in their history.

International Bowl Betting Trend: Connecticut is 8-2 straight up in their last 10 games as a favorite with a spread between 4 and 7.5.

BetUS.com's Buffalo vs Connecticut 2009 International Bowl Betting Odds:

Buffalo Bulls +6.5 (-110), Over 52 (-110), +210 (Money line)
