Just when you think that Lindsay Lohan has settled down and found true love, the wheels start flying off her fast paced roller coast ride of a life. The train wreck starlet got into a huge fight at Mansion Night club while she was partying for New Years Eve with girlfriend DJ Samantha Ronson. Online betting giant BetUS.com has posted betting odds that makes Olympic Gold Medalist Michael Phelps 8 to 1 to be Lohan's next lover.

"That Michael Phelps is such a horn dog," stated Point-Spreads.com Gossip Columnist Deloris Jones. "He has a sexy body but I got turned off by the way he was always in Las Vegas with a new hoochie momma every day of the week. He must have suppressed his sexual energy while in Beijing in order to win all those gold medals."

Shortly into the New Year, reports from Miami began to surface that besides the fight on New Years Eve at Mansion, Lindsay Lohan and Samantha Ronson got into a screaming match in their posh South Beach Hotel lobby and the American Airlines Admirals Club on their way out of MIA for LAX. Once back in LA, Ronson was spotted solo moping around Beverly Hills while Lohan was out at Apple Lounge with her assistant and a friend. Since Lindsay Lohan was spotted partying it up without her DJ girlfriend, the rumor mill was fueled with speculation that the pair had split up

A source says, "She (Lindsay) seemed kind of indifferent, emotionless. It was definitely apparent her friends were trying to cheer her up. It looked to be a 'first night back out on the town' sort of thing."

Apparently all bets are off, Lindsay was spotted with her sister Ali at Ronson's Hollywood Hill home earlier today where she told the paparazzi that she was still dating Samantha. Before leaving the scene, Lindsay looked over at Sam and said, "Bye, babe."
