The Packers (3-2) skunked Detroit 26-0 at home in Week 6 and now sit second in the NFC North. QB Aaron Rodgers made 29 of 37 passes for 358 yards with two TD passes and one interception; overall he's thrown for 1,456 with eight TD passes and two interceptions. RB Ryan Grant had 24 carries for 90 yards, while WR Donald Driver made seven catches for 107 yards. WR James Jones and RB John Kuhn each added a TD. The Packers had too many penalties on the day as they made 13 mistakes which cost them 130 yards, this will not do against higher caliber teams. The Packers will put their 10th ranked passing game up against the Browns 23rd ranked pass defense . Their 19th ranked running game should do well against the Browns 30th ranked rush defense. The Packers average an eighth ranked 26ppg, while their defense allows an ninth ranked 18.6ppg. The Pack average 26ppg and give up 18.6ppg, while they average 29.5ppg on the road and allow 23.5ppg. They are 3-2 ATS and 3-2 over/under.

The Browns (1-5) lost at Pittsburgh 14-27 in Week 6 and still sit dead last in the . QB Derek Anderson made a low nine of 24 passes for 122 yards with one TD and one interception; overall he's thrown for 506 yards with two TD passes and six interceptions in four starts. RB Joshua Cribbs had six carries for 45 yards, while WR Mohamed Massaquoi made five catches for 83 yards. FB Lawrence Vickers was the lone receiver to catch for a TD. On defense, they don't have a pass-rusher or anyone who scares a game-planning offensive coordinator except perhaps nose tackle Shaun Rogers. On offense the Browns are limp . They have a 31st ranked passing game and 18th ranked running game that probably won't get to far against the Packers 16th ranked rush defense. The Browns average 11.5ppg and give up 24.7ppg, while averaging 20ppg at home and allow 28.5ppg. They are 3-3 ATS and 3-3 over/under.
